

MEMORANDUM

DATE	June 1, 2026
TO	California Board of Behavioral Sciences
FROM	Rosanne Helms, Legislative Manager
SUBJECT	Discussion of Amendments to Address Accreditation Candidacy and Approval of Schools by the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education

Overview

Under the Board's statutes, applicants for licensure as a marriage and family therapist (LMFT) or professional clinical counselor (LPCC) must obtain a degree from a school, college or university that is either unconditionally approved by the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education (BPPE), or that is accredited by a regional or national institutional accrediting agency that is recognized by the United States Department of Education¹. Applicants for licensure as a clinical social worker (LCSW) must obtain a degree from a school that is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE).

The purpose of accreditation is to ensure that schools meet certain quality standards. Additionally, the BPPE, which is under the Department of Consumer Affairs (DCA), approves private postsecondary educational institutions operating in California in order to protect students by making sure schools meet state standards.

Today's discussion focuses on two distinct but interrelated topics:

1. Proposed amendments to the licensing process for graduates of LMFT and LPCC degree programs whose schools are in accreditation candidacy; and
2. Proposed amendments related to the evolving definition and implications of BPPE school approval.

Accreditation Candidacy

Recently, the Board has seen an increase in applicants whose school is still in candidacy for accreditation. While LCSW law addresses this situation for clinical social work applicants, LMFT and LPCC law does not.

LCSW statute (Business and Professions Code (BPC) §4996.18\(c\) and \(d\)) sets requirements for clinical social work applicants if their school is still in candidacy for accreditation upon their graduation. They are permitted to register as an associate and gain experience toward licensure. However, they may not take the clinical exam until their school has received accreditation. If the school achieves accreditation, they may move forward with taking the clinical exam and applying for full licensure.

Although this requirement has been in LCSW statute for many years, there is not a comparable provision in LMFT or LPCC statute. Therefore, staff proposes adding similar language to LMFT and LPCC law. Additionally, staff proposes a clause be added to all three practice acts (including the existing LCSW law) clarifying what constitutes “failure to obtain accreditation,” and clarifying that once a school fails to obtain accreditation, an applicant may no longer renew their associate registration. The amendments also require schools to notify their prospective students that the school’s failure to obtain accreditation will affect their license eligibility. Stating this clearly in statute will help both schools and applicants understand accreditation candidacy and its potential consequences.

Attachment A shows the proposed language for each license type.

However, adding these amendments to LMFT and LPCC law raises a new issue that does not apply to the current LCSW law, which should also be addressed.

While the Board only accepts CSWE accreditation for LCSW applicants, what it accepts for LMFT and LPCC degrees is broader. For LMFT and LPCC degrees, a school program may come from a school, college or university that is either unconditionally approved by the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education (BPPE), or it may be accredited by a regional or national institutional accrediting agency that is recognized by the United States Department of Education. However, the BPPE changed what school “approval” means in 2015.

BPPE School Approval

Although the BPPE used to approve unaccredited educational institutions in California, that changed with SB 1247 (Chapter 840, Statutes of 2014). That bill required institutions offering degree programs in California to become accredited by an accrediting agency recognized by the U.S. Department of Education. Schools not yet accredited may obtain provisional approval to operate from BPPE and typically must become fully accredited within 5 years (although an extension is possible). Schools with BPPE provisional approval must notify their students in writing that they are not yet accredited.

Changing references to BPPE approved schools in statute has not been an urgent need, because it now essentially means the same thing as accreditation. However, staff is concerned that adding the new language, while leaving BPPE approval in law as acceptable, could cause someone whose school had conditional BPPE approval, but ultimately failed accreditation, to point to statute allowing BPPE approval and claim their degree is qualifying. This argument wouldn’t stand up, because the law requires unconditional BPPE approval, but it’s likely an appropriate time to clarify this in statute.

Attachment B shows proposed amendments to remove references to BPPE approval throughout the Board's statutes. In addition to this, staff has added a grandfather clause in a new section (BPC §4980.36.5, BPC §4999.33.5). The grandfather clause permits the Board to accept degrees that were awarded on or before January 1, 2015, when the BPPE was still approving unaccredited schools, if the school had unconditional BPPE approval at the time the degree was granted. This will ensure that there are no unintended consequences for applicants holding a degree from one of these schools before the law changed to require accreditation.

Relevant BPPE Statutes

- SB 1247 \(Chapter 840, Statutes of 2014\): Required an institution not accredited by an accrediting agency recognized by the U.S. Department of Education, that had obtained BPPE approval to operate on or before January 1, 2015, to either become accredited by July 1, 2015 or to have an accreditation plan and become fully accredited by July 1, 2020. (Education Code (EC) §94885.1)
- EC §94885.5: Sets requirements for institutions granted provisional approval to operate by BPPE, including:
 - Notifying its students in writing before enrollment that the school's approval to operate is contingent upon it becoming accredited.
 - Schools must provide evidence of accreditation candidacy or pre-accreditation within two years, and evidence of accreditation within 5 years.

Recommendation

Conduct an open discussion of the proposed language in Attachment A and Attachment B. Direct staff to make any discussed changes, and any nonsubstantive changes, and recommend that the Board pursue the language in both attachments as a legislative proposal.
